The actions carried out in 2019 by the João Pessoa City of Crafts and Folk Arts Program, whose summary is presented in this report, go beyond those originally planned, favorably affecting our population and other cities of the World Network of Creative Cities, especially in Latin America, without losing sight. Considering the projects proposed in the application dossier, whether structuring as the creation of the Cultural Innovation Laboratory, or strategic, such as research on cultural identity, demand and craft offer in João Pessoa.

We have advanced especially in institutional collaboration, cooperation and exchange, the main reason for this Network, of which we are proud to participate.

Luciano Cartaxo - Mayor of João Pessoa
Program Coordination is the responsibility of the João Pessoa City Hall, performed by a team specially designated by the Planning Secretariat.

Collaborate in the proposition, monitoring and evaluation of actions, projects and representative activities indicated by the partner institutions that make up the Manager group: Federal University of Paraíba - UFPB; Paraíba Federal Institute of Education - IFPB; University Center of João Pessoa; Paraíba Industry Federation –FIEP; SEBRAE; SENAI, Fecomercio; Northeast Bank and Municipal Secretariats.

The Advisory Board is composed of people nominated by the scientific and cultural community and its purpose is to suggest actions and collaborate in the dissemination of the program.
Structuring Projects

According to João Pessoa's application dossier as UNESCO’s Creative City, it was proposed to create three facilities, each of which would deal with one of the three links in the craft production and consumption chain.

A Cultural Innovation Laboratory, A Social Craft Factory and a Center for Promotion and Marketing.

The Commercialization Center was inaugurated in January 2018 called Celeiro Espaço Criativo. Consisting of training, exhibition / sale space and art gallery. On the upper floor, from December 2019, will be the Cultural Innovation Laboratory - LABIN.

The space destined for the Social Handicraft Factory is secured, now missing the bidding, purchase and installation of equipment.
The coordination of the actions of the João Pessoa Creative City Program of UNESCO is effectively exercised by the members of the Cultural Innovation Laboratory - LABIN, designated by the João Pessoa City Hall by the Federal University of Paraíba and the Federation of Industries of Paraíba.

To make the triple helix of innovation viable, a cooperation agreement was signed between these three institutions.

LABIN acts as a space for proposing and executing research and strategic projects, starting from the premise of Commons Design, where products and services are developed for the common good.

In 2019 LABIN started to use the physical area located on the second floor of the Villa Sanhauá in João Pessoa.
Labin utilizes, as fundamental input to the processes of decision making, the experience of the technical team capable to decodify the informations, transforming it in knowledge, which application on the solution of problems it’s what defines as intelligence.

For this information to be useful, it must be a result of actual and reliable data analysis about the three themes, which make it possible to create a product based on the territory culture.
Strategic Projects

Research about the material and immaterial culture of João Pessoa.

The main input for the developing of products with regional identity is the knowledge of the local cultural matrix, revealing the most expressive and singular elements, present, overall, in the collective unconscious.

This is the major objective of this research, which will be facilitated thanks to a covenant of technical cooperation with the Federal University of Paraíba, which provided the professor Kléber Barros (UFPB – in Rio Tinto) to coordinate the research, supported by 10 students trainees of design, sociology and anthropology.

The results of this research will be published in the beginning of 2021.
