Background information

Ratified by 145 countries and the European Union, the UNESCO 2005 Convention on the Protection and Promotion of the Diversity of Cultural Expressions (2005 Convention) recognizes the right of governments to adopt regulations, policies and measures to support the emergence of dynamic and strong cultural and creative industries (CCIs). It ensures artists, cultural professionals and creative practitioners, as well as all citizens, have the capacity to create, produce, disseminate and enjoy a broad range of cultural goods, services and activities, including their own.

UNESCO, with funding from the EU, has launched in December 2018 a call for applications to support 12 countries in their efforts to establish new regulatory frameworks for the CCIs and provide for South-South peer-to-peer learning and exchange opportunities. A project submitted by the Ministry of Culture, Youth and Sports of the Republic of South Sudan has been accepted by the EU/UNESCO Steering Committee. This project seeks to create legal frameworks for CCIs in South Sudan, by elaborating the first-ever copyright policy of the country, aimed at protecting and promoting artistic works of South Sudanese artists and creators. This project will also support capacity building of national authorities through ensuring that the copyright policy is created in a participatory manner.

Drawing upon the expertise requested by South Sudan, a national expert is expected to work closely in pair with an international expert from the EU/UNESCO Expert Facility to accompany South Sudan in the design of its copyright policy. For more information about the EU/UNESCO project, please see Annex I.

Fact Sheet “Provision of Expertise and Peer-to-Peer Learning Support”

Project title	EU/UNESCO Expert Facility on the Governance of Culture in Developing Countries: Support for new regulatory frameworks to strengthen the cultural and creative industries and promote South-South cooperation
Project Duration	September 2018 to August 2021
Implementing body	Section for the Diversity of Cultural Expressions, Culture Sector, UNESCO
What is a regulatory framework for CCIs and why does it need to be reinforced?	The cultural and creative industries (CCIs) have become a driver and enabler of sustainable development, generating annual global revenues of US$ 2,250 billion and exports of over US$ 250 billion. It is estimated that these sectors provide nearly 30 million jobs worldwide and employ more people aged 15-29 than any other sector. The CCIs operate in a complex environment requiring laws, strategies, policies and measures that can be based on goals and principles defined in the UNESCO Convention on the Protection and Promotion of the Diversity of Cultural Expressions (2005). This means that frameworks regulating the CCIs should contribute to an enabling environment for the culture sector, where artistic freedom, creativity and innovation, the diversity of cultural contents and expressions, intellectual property rights, the mobility of artists and cultural professionals and market access are ensured. Such frameworks also need to address the significant and rapid changes posed by digital technologies and the challenges that artists and cultural professionals face in order to ensure that their works can be protected and promoted in a digital environment.
What is the project and why?	This programme aims to support developing countries within a timeframe of 18-24 months to: <ol style="list-style-type: none"> 1. Design, adapt and/or implement regulatory frameworks (laws, strategies, policies and measures) for the CCIs, including intellectual property rights related to CCIs; 2. Strengthen skills and capacities to support long-term cultural policy development and implementation that support the CCIs; 3. Create peer-to-peer mechanisms to strengthen institutional capacities for the CCIs through South-South cooperation activities.
How does it work?	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Through an open call, UNESCO created an EU/UNESCO Expert Facility comprised of 42 renown international experts (26 women and 16 men) having specific expertise in the fields covered by the 2005 Convention. • UNESCO has launched an open-ended call to solicit requests for provision of expertise and peer-to-peer learning support from eligible countries. Twelve (12) beneficiary countries, or more if budget allows, will be selected. • UNESCO provides expertise through international and national experts to the beneficiary countries to provide expertise and support for peer-to-peer learning and capacity development.
Main activities	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Specialized expertise. Drawing upon the expertise requested, an international expert from the EU/UNESCO Expert Facility and a national expert will be identified by national authorities and contracted by UNESCO to guide the beneficiary government in the design of laws, strategies, policies and measures for the CCIs, including Intellectual Property Rights regulation related to CCIs. The programme will cover the costs of up to three missions by the international expert. He/she will work with a national expert, and the duration of each mission and the precise mission schedule will be decided between the beneficiary country, the experts and UNESCO. The experts will provide mentoring throughout the policymaking process. • Multi-stakeholder dialogue and consultation. The project will support the organization of multi-stakeholder meetings in order to gather diverse perspectives during the elaboration of a new regulatory framework. Such consultations are indispensable to ensuring that the new regulatory framework takes into account the needs, challenges and opportunities faced by a wide range of stakeholders (various ministries within a government, civil society, professional associations/unions, the private sector, etc.). <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Training workshops. In order to ensure that the beneficiary government is empowered to implement the new regulatory policies/measures, the project will organize training workshops targeting government officials and civil society stakeholders. • Peer-to-peer learning support, exchanges and sharing of knowledge. In order to encourage peer-to-peer learning, the project will facilitate exchanges with public officials/policy administrators/implementers from the Global South who have created exemplary policies in their own country. He/she will share his/her experience during a visit to the beneficiary country. In addition, public officials from the beneficiary country will also be invited to visit their counterparts in order to gain first hand knowledge and experience from their peer. This cooperation mechanism will support the exchange of information and knowledge as well as capacity-building for professionals and public officials in the culture sector. • Technical backstopping. UNESCO (Headquarters and Field Offices) will provide continuous support to ensure effective implementation of the activities in the country and take remedial actions as necessary.

Eligible countries	96 developing countries that are Parties to the 2005 Convention on the Protection and Promotion of the Diversity of Cultural Expressions.
Expected project outcome	Governments and civil society actors take steps to implement new regulatory frameworks in a transparent, evidence-based and participatory manner.
Link between the Project and the 2030 Agenda	The results of this programme are expected to provide developing countries with support in achieving their commitments to the UN's 2030 Agenda for Sustainable Development in general and specific Sustainable Development Goals (SDG) aimed at: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Creating sound policy frameworks to support accelerated investment in poverty eradication actions (SDG target 1.b) • Adopting and strengthening sound policies and enforceable legislation for the promotion of gender equality and the empowerment of all women and girls at all levels (SDG target 5.c) • Promoting policies that support entrepreneurship, creativity and innovation, and encourage formalization and growth of micro and SMME's (SDG target 8.3) • Ensuring responsive, inclusive, participatory and representative decision-making at all levels (SDG target 16.7)
