Lifelong learning is a process that begins at birth and carries on through all stages of life.

A positive home learning environment stimulates brain development from the time we’re born.

Developing skills for decent work can happen outside of the classroom.

We learn a lot from our teachers, but we also learn from our peers, our families, our communities and our experiences.

Adult education programmes teach new knowledge and vital skills and help people engage in their community.

Gender sensitivity.

Lifelong learning can help change attitudes and behavior so we can all live and work more sustainably together.

In order to create a sustainable future for all, we need opportunities to improve our knowledge, learn new skills and deepen our understanding throughout our lives.

Bit.ly/GEMPLANET