Recent Studies in China on Admiral Zheng He's Navigation

Liu Yingsheng
Nanjing University, China

At the end of 15th century great Portuguese sailor Vasco Da Gama returned to Europe from India. In the history of navigation, the Portuguese discovery is the very beginning of the new era. But before the Portuguese came to the east the Pacific Ocean and Indian Ocean had already been a busy commercial region for a long time. Ships of China, Southeast Asia, Subcontinent, West Asia and East Africa had kept on coming and going from east to west and from west to east. Admiral Zheng He and his fleets’ navigation in the West Pacific Ocean and Indian Ocean in the early 15th century is one of greatest achievements in the history of Chinese navigation activities.

In the period from the 3rd year of Yong Le 永乐 (1405) to the 8th year of Xuan De 宣德 (1433) Zheng He sailed 7 times to Southeast Asia and in the Indian Ocean. His fleet was the biggest in the world at that time. It consisted of more than 200 ships and more than 27,800 sailors and soldiers.

The study on Zheng He's navigation activity was begun at the beginning of the Qing Dynasty when Zhang Tingyu 张廷玉 and his colleagues compiled the biography of Zheng He of the Ming Shi in the 17th century. After the article of Liang Qichao 梁启超 namely Zu Guo Da Hang Hai Jia Zheng He Zhuan 祖国大航海家郑和传 (Biography of Our Motherlands Great Admiral Zheng He) published in 1904 the studies developed very quickly. According to the bibliography since that time till 1989 there had been altogether about 900 articles and book concerning the life and activities of Zheng He published in China, including the continent, Taiwan and Hong Kong. In the last 10 years, the number of the publications has kept on increasing to about 60 papers and books per year. In this article I would like to give a brief description of the resent studies on Zheng He and his navigation activities in China. My introduction includes sources, historic geography, aims and significance, relations between the Ming China and other countries, history of Southeast Asian countries and trade. Because this paper is prepared on board during this expedition of the UNESCO and the material which I have now is limited, so it is only a primary introduction.
Sources

Original sources are bases of historical studies. In the last 10 years quite a lot of resources of Zheng He's navigation were published or republished and some new additions of important sources have appeared. The most important of them are:

Xi Yang Fang Guo Zhi (Description of Different Countries), written by Gong Zhen, who had accompanied Zheng He to sail in the Indian Ocean. In the past scholars only knew the name of this book from the old bibliographical books. Many of them believed that it was already lost. However in 1948 it was discovered. In 1961 it was published by Zhong Hua Shu Ju 中华书局 I edited by prof. Xiang Da 向达. This edition including three introductions copied from different bibliographical books, five inscriptions concerning Zheng He and another material. This book includes descriptions of 20 countries. It was reprinted in 1982.

Xi Yang Chao Gong Dian Lu (Tributes from Western Countries), written by Huang Shengzeng 黄省曾 around 1520. The main difference between this book and the others, for example Ying Ya Sheng Lan 瀛涯胜览 and Xing Cuo Sheng Lan 星搓胜览 and Xi Yang Fan Guo Zhi, is there are navigation courses and compass directions to these countries which the author described. It was edited by Xie Fang 谢方 published with index by Zhong Hua Shu Ju in 1982. There are also articles which discussed some problems in Zheng He's navigation, for example Chen Youhe's 陈有和 paper Zheng He Xia Xi Yang De Yi Ge Zhong Yao Shi Shi Tan Tao 郑和下西洋的一个重要事实探讨. (A Study on an Important Problem Concerning Zheng He Is Navigation).1

One of the most important works in studying the original material concerning Zhen He's navigation is Zhen Hesheng 郑鹤声 Zheng yijun’s 鄭一钧 Zhe He Xia Xi Yang Zi Liao Hui Bian 郑和下西洋资料汇编 (Collected Materials of Zheng He's Navigation) 3 vol. published in 1980 in Shangaong 山东 which classified all the resources so far as the author.

has known. It is a very useful tool in studying. The authors had studied Zheng He for more than 40 years. They are well known in China. Xie Fang, another scholar, also gave a general description of the sources about Zheng He's navigation.2

Except this there were also collections of materials concerning different countries published in recent years, for example the Institute of History Southeast Asian Zhong Shan University compiled a book titled Zhong Guo Gu Ji Zhong Yu Guan Fei Lu Bien Zi Liao Hui Bian 中国古籍总语关菲律宾资料汇编 (Collected Materials gathered from Classic Chinese Literature concerning Philippine) 3 and the article Wo Guo Zai Ji Zhong De Jia Li Man Dan 我国载籍中的加里曼丹 (Kailimantan in Chinese Historical Literature4). Meanwhile Yuan
Jian 袁坚 gave a paper on the inscription of Zheng He in Sri Lanka5.

The personal history of Zheng He and the history of his family have been another focus in studying. Wang Ying gave a study on this topic6. Yin Yuanzhuo 殷远卓 made a study on the name of Zheng He7. The same topic appeared again and again in different journals8. The date of Zheng He’s death that was in 1433 was given in the conclusion of the paper pf Zheng YiJun 郑一钧9. Meanwhile the scholars are also interested in the religion of Zheng He. For example there is an article which studied how Zheng He became a Buddhist10.
And another article studied the religious activities of Zheng He11.

In these 10 years Chinese archaeologists did a lot of work relating to Zheng He. Some of the relics of Zheng He were found. For example a bell which was casted by Zheng He before he started from China was found in Nan Ping city 南平 of Fu Jian province 福建 in and also an inscription of Zheng He. In Nanjing, the first capital of the Ling Dynasty, some relics of Zheng He’s residence were excavated. And the tomb of Zheng He is there also. Wu Lvming gave a good study on the historical monuments of navigation in Tai Cang county 太仓 of Jiang Su province 江苏 in the Yuan and Ming periods, including the dock from where Zheng He started his navigation, navy leading bodies and customs, houses, store houses, hotels, ship building plant, temples which was used for praying safe, inscriptions concerning Zheng He’s navigation and a sunk ship.

Historic Geography

Historical geography is one of the most important topics in the studies on Zheng He in China. In the new editions of the Chinese sources mentioned above, we can see that the editors really did a lot of work in identification of the place names appeared in these books. And these new are very important in the future studies.

Of course every researcher, even great scholars, has his limits in knowledge. If we read these materials carefully and compare them other materials earlier or later than them, we can find that some of the works done before still need to improve and there are still a lot of work waiting for us to do. For example in the chart of Zheng He's navigation, a place name in Arabia Peninsula between Zufar and Muscat mentioned, which is called Gu Li Ya 古里亚. Our editor Prof. Xiang Da identified it with Kuria Bay in the southern coast of Arabia Peninsula. If we check the names Die Wei 迭微 and Gui Yu 龟屿 (means Turtle Island) which have not yet been identified, we can find that Gu Li Ya should be Quriyat, meanwhile Die Wei should be Tiwei and Turtle Island is Juzir al-Dimaliyat. All of them are at the east coast of the peninsula. So historical geographical study is still a hard task for us, but it is worth to continue.

Southeast Asia and India Ocean were traditionally called Nan Yang 南洋 (The southern Ocean) and Dong Yang 东洋 (Eastern Ocean) and Xi Yang 西洋 (Western Ocean) by the Chinese. The geographical meanings of these terms were not fixed. They developed as the time changed. The article Wo Guo Wai Ji Zhong Nan Yang Yu Dong Xi Yang Ming Cheng De Yan Bian 我国载籍中南洋与东西洋名称的演变 (The Development of the Meaning of the Terms Nan Yang, Dong Yang and Ci Yang in Chinese Classic Literature)\(^\text{18}\) gave a general description of this topic. Gu Haichu 顾海初’s article Zheng He Hang Hai Tu 郑和航海图 (The Navigation Chart of Zheng He)\(^\text{19}\) is an introduction on this topic. And the article of Yang Hanqiu 杨翰逑 Shi Wu Dao Shi Qi Ji Zhong Xi Hang Hai Mai Yi Shi Li De Xing Shuai 十五到十七世纪中西航海贸易势力的兴衰 (The Changing of the Maritime Trade Activities between China and the Western, Countries)\(^\text{20}\) studied the changing period when the control of trade in India Ocean was transferred from the hands of Chinese to the hands of Portuguese. It is worth to read.

Navigation Technique and Ship Building

One of the most important works in the topic of navigation technique of the early Ming period is the article of Xie Haiquan 谢海泉 published in Hong Kong, namely Zheng He Xia Xi Yang Jian Dui Zhi Hai Shang Hang Fa 郑和下西洋的舰队之海上航法 (Navigation Technique of Zheng he’s Fleet)\(^\text{21}\) which discussed the technique of using sails and the monsoon, and the technique of using compass for controlling direction and the instruments for checking time and the knowledge of navigation. Unit “Geng” in Navigation\(^{22}\) is specially dealing with the problem of measuring distance in Zhenghe’s navigation and the article of Lu Shi 阚石 discussed the using of compass of Zhenghe’s fleet\(^{23}\).

There was an article written by Zheng Yaozong 张耀宗 which introduced the life of a doctor who accompanied Zheng He during his navigation\(^{24}\). Ship building is another focus in the study of navigation technique in the tile of Zheng He. Scholars who participated in this discussion were not only historians but also archaeologists and engineers. The stress of discussion was whether the length and width of Zheng He’s ships recorded in Chinese sources are true of wrong\(^{25}\).
The Aims and Significance of Zheng He’s Navigation

The aim of Zheng He’s navigation is an old problem discussed by many scholars. But peoples are still interested in this topic and this kind of papers appeared again and again in different journals. In recent years the paper of Yang Xi 杨憘 Zheng He Xia Xi Yang Mu Di Kao Lue 郑和下西洋目的考略 （On the Purpose of Zheng He’s Navigation）26 and Feng Erkang冯尔康’s Ming Cheng Zu Yu Zheng He Xia Xi Yang 明成祖与郑和下西洋 (Ming Emperor Cheng Zu and Navigation of Zheng He)27 should be mentioned.

Relations between Ming China and Other Countries and History of Southeast Asia

Papers on this topic are a lot. The most important collected work is Zhong Wai Wen Hua Jiao Liu Shi 中外文化交流史 (History of Culture Exchange between China and the Rest of the World)28 which contains the papers concerning the relationship between China and Burma, Indonesia, Malaysia and Brunei, Philippine, Thailand, Vietnam, Cambodia, Bangladesh, Sri Lanka, India, Maldives, Arabia, Africa and so on. Besides this the non-periodical publication of Jinan University 暨南大学 namely Dong Nan Ya Shi Lun Wen Ji 东南亚史论文集 (collected paper on the History of Southeast Asia) is another most important one. And the 1st issue of it was published in 198029. In this part I had better describe them according to the countries which they relating to.

Burma

The article written by Chen Yan 陈炎 namely Zhong Mian Wen Hua Jiao Liu Liang Qian Nian 中缅文化交流两千年 (2000 years Cultural Exchange between China and Burma)30 is a general description

Indonesia

The paper of Chen Zhaofu 陈造福 namely 19 Shi Ji Yi Qian Zhong Guo He Yin Du Ni Xi Ya Guan Xi Kao Lue 19世纪以前中国和印度尼西亚关系考略 (Relationship between China and Indonesia before the 19th Century) is a general historical description of this topic 31. Meanwhile the article of Zhou Nanjin 周南京 Li Shi Shang Zhong Guo He Yin Du Ni Xi Ya De Wen Hua Jiao Liu 历史上中国和印度尼西亚的文化交流 (Cultural Exchange between China and Indonesia throughout the History) 32 contains a short description of the relations between these two countries in the time of Zheng He.

Malaysia and Brunei

In the paper Hui Gu Zhong Guo Yu Ma Lai Xi Ya Wen Lai Wen Hua Jiao Liu De Li Shi 回顾中国与马来西亚文莱文化交流的历史 (A Review of the History of Cultural Exchange between China and Malaysia and Brunei) 33 by Zhou Nanjing 周南京, the author described the five times visits of the kings of Malacca to China and discussed the relationship between the Ming government and other small countries in Malay Peninsula.

One of the most important things in the history of relations between China and Brunei is that the King of Brunei visited China in the early years of the 15th century and died there. His Tomb was discovered in my hometown Nanjing in 1958. Wang Yin 王引's paper 34 is only an introduction of it. Meanwhile Shi Yuan 史原's paper Boni Guo Wang Mu he Mu Bei Bei Wen Lue Kao 鉴泥国王墓和墓碑碑文略考 (The Tomb of the King of Brunei and a Study on the Text of his Tomb Inscription) 35 and the article of Ji Shijia 季士家 namely Guan Yu Boni Guo Wang Mu He Mu Bei Bei Wen Wen Ti 关于鑑泥周王墓和墓碑文问题 (On the problem of the Tomb of the King of Brunei and the Text of his Tomb Inscription) 36 gave detailed description of this topic.

Philippines

The paper of Jiang Xingdong 江醒东 is specialized in the friendly relationship between China and Philippine in the Ming period, that is the time of Zheng He. And so do the paper of Zhou Shaoquan 周绍泉. The article of Zhou Nanjing namely Zhong Guo He Fei Lv Bin Wen Hua Jiang Liu De Li Shi 中国和菲律宾文化交流的历史 (A History of Cultural Exchange between China and Philippine) is an important and very good paper.

Whether Zheng He really visited Philippine is still a problem discussed by scholars. Some of them believed that Zheng He never visited Philippine. Zhou Shaoquan 周绍泉 did not agree with this idea. He gave his opinions in an article.

One of the most important events in the history of relations between China and Philippine is the visit of the king of Sulu to the Ming China. The king died in China during his visit and there are some descendants of him still living in China. The paper Su Lu Guo Wang Ji Qi Hou Yi 苏禄国王及其后裔 (The King of Sulu and his Descendants) introduced this story. The same topic appeared frequently in different journals.

Sub-continent: Sri Lanka, Maldives and Bangladesh

Geng Yinzeng 耿引曾 in her article studied the friendly relations with China and the Sub-continent throughout the history. Zhou Shaoquan 周绍泉 in his article analyzed the mission of Zheng He to Bangladesh. The article of Geng Yinzeng 耿引曾 Yi Fuo Jiao Wei Zhong Xin De Zhong Si Wen Hua Jiao Liu 以佛教中心的中斯文化交流 (Sino-Lanka...)

cultural Exchange with the Stress of Buddhism) ⁴⁵ gave a general description of the historical relationship between china and Sri Lanka. The shortage of it is that in the paragraph of Zheng He’s navigation there is no word mentioned about the opinions of Sri Lanka’s scholars. And the paper of Zhou Nanjing 周南京 which was published several years before, discussed the same problem⁴⁶. The study of Xie Fang 谢方 on the descriptions of Maldives in the classical Chinese literature⁴⁷ is a very good study on such kind of topic.

Thailand

The paper Xian Luo He Ming Chao Guan Xi De Ruo Gan Wen Ti 暹罗和明朝关系的若干问题 (Some problems concerning the Relations between the Ming Dynasty and Thailand) written by an young scholar Duan Lisheng 段立生⁴⁸ is worth to read. And Zhang Lianying 张莲英 did the same topic⁴⁹. The article of Ge Zhilun 葛志伦1949 Nian Yi Qian De Zhong Tai Wen Hua Jiao Liu 1949年以前的中泰文化交流 (Cultural Exchange between China and Thailand before 1949) ⁵⁰ described political, trade and cultural relations between these two countries throughout history. And Chen Bisheng 陈碧笙’s paper Zhong Tai Li Shi Guan Xi Lue Lun 中泰历史关系略论 (On the Historical Relationship between China and Thailand) ⁵¹ is also an important general introduction. Jiang Yingliang 江应梁’s paper studied the same topic⁵².

Cheng Yulong 陈玉龙’s paper Zhong Guo He Yue Nan Jian Pu Zhai Lao Wo Wen Hua Jiao Liu 中国和越南、柬埔寨、老挝文化交流 (Cultural Exchange between China and Vietnam, Cambodia and Laos) 53 is the most resent general description of this topic.

Arabia

In his navigation Zheng He visited Arabic Peninsula 3 times. The paper of Zhang Guangda 张广达 Hai Bo Lai Tian Fang Si Lu Tong Ta Shi 海舶来天方丝路大食 (Ships from Mecca and silk Roads to Arabia) 54 discussed the background of the historical relationship between China and the Arabia world. Meanwhile the stress of the article of Zhang Junyan 张俊彦 was on Oman55.

Africa

Zheng He and his fleet visited eastern Africa several times. Sheng Fuwei 沈福伟 believed that Zheng He had visited Africa 5 times, he explained his idea in his paper56. In the paper of He Fangchuan 何芳川, the author described the relationship between China and eastern part of Africa throughout the History. The author believed that Zheng He had only visited eastern Africa 3 times;

Japan

Whether Zheng He visited Japan or not is still an unsolved problem. The paper of Pan Qun 潘群 gave a study on this 58 topic.

Trade

Extending official trade between the Ming government and other Asian and African countries was one of the main purposes of Zheng He’s navigation. Some scholars put their stress on the trade relations. For example, Tian Peidong 田培栋 gave an article discussing the trade connection of maritime road of the Ming Dynasty with other countries 59.

In the ancient times trade relations of Chinese government with other countries were mostly called “TRIBUTE”. “Tribute” was not always like some people imagined that one side was forced to present some goods to another side, and another side accepted the presents without any condition. Mostly the “TRIBUTE” must be paid. So many Chinese Scholars prefer to explain “TRIBUTE” as official trade. Zhou Jiming 周积明’s paper discussed this problem 60. And Zhao Jingshen 赵景深’s article is on the same topic 61.

Some of the scholars in recent years tried to extend their studies. Chen Shangsheng 陈尚胜 gave a new paper on the historical position of the Ming China in the Pacifico-Asian trade 62. Although the article did not touch the navigation of Zheng He directly, but the author put his study into the background of the Asian history between the second half of the 14th century and the mid of the 17th century. The same author also gave other three papers, one was on the evolution of the customs formalities system in the Ming period 63 and another was on the establishment and of the customs house of Zhejiang Province in the Ming period 64 and the third was on the customs formalities systems and the overseas trade of the Ming Dynasty 65. And Chao Zhongchen 晁中晨’s article on the cause of the prohibition policy of overseas trade in the Ming period \(^{66}\) is also a study which can help us to understand the historical background of Zheng He’s navigation.

The Paper of Yu Siwei 余思伟 namely Ma Liu Jia Gang Zai Shi Wu Shi Ji De Li Shi Zuo Yong 马六甲港在十五世纪的历史作用 (The Historical Role of Malacca Port in the 15th Century\(^{67}\) ) is a goad study, the author avoided too much political element in his study as many other papers contained and specialized on Malacca Port. So that gave his paper more scientific meaning.

Conclusion

From the papers which I mentioned above we can see how great achievements in the studies on Zheng He's navigation have been made in China. In 1985 many scholars gathered in Nanjing to have a seminar in memory of Zheng He's navigation. At the same time we should paint out the studies still need to be improved. On the topic which is relatively easy to study gathered a lot of scholars. While only few specialists kept on doing hard task, for example study on original sources and identification of place names. Many papers were only general introductions. In the topic of relationship between the Ming and other countries, this should be one of the most interesting problems, many scholar only touched political relations. They should extend their studies to the field of trade, culture and ideas. Many scholars only knew to praise the achievements of ancient Chinese navigators, some of them connected their studies to the old Chinese traditional navigation materials, but few of them compared these materials with those of non-Chinese before it and after it, especially with the Austro-Asian, Indian, Muslim Dutch and Portuguese navigation materials and also with archaeological findings. It is hardly to imagine that Chinese navigation was developed separately and independently. It must get a lot of influence from abroad. So to conclude in one word: The achievements are great but not enough.

We should learn from other scholars and to know more about the studies on abroad. That is why I come here. The materials concerning Zheng He's navigation are important sources in studies on the history of Southeast Asia, which is our common task. I hope in the future we could work together on some topic and program so that to improve our work and to benefit our people.
