Cash for Work: Promoting Livelihood Opportunities for Urban Youth in Yemen

Awareness-raising event

Restoring Livelihoods through Culture in Yemen
26-27 May 2021

Concept Note
I- Context

In September 2018, UNESCO and the European Union launched the project entitled “Cash for Work: Promoting Livelihood Opportunities for Urban Youth in Yemen”, aimed at creating jobs in heritage restoration and preservation for young Yemenis, while promoting social cohesion and resilience through cultural programming. The initiative comes as a response to the economic hardship, extensive population displacement, and heavy damages to infrastructure and heritage due to the ongoing conflict in the country and recently the covid-19 pandemic.

In 2020, the project picked up speed and was able to implement on the basis of the solid foundation established in the inception phase. Progress was achieved despite a challenging operating context of political fragmentation, extreme weather conditions affecting several cities, the spread of the COVID-19 pandemic, shortage of raw construction materials as well as severe security risks impacting operations and staff mobility. However, UNESCO, the Social Fund for Development (SFD) and the Public Works Project (PWP) were able to launch emergency rehabilitation works in Sana’a, Shibam, Zabid and Aden that are enhancing livelihoods of young male and female beneficiaries and are informed by evidence-based damage assessments and newly produced technical urban rehabilitation guidelines.

As of March 2021, the Project has: surveyed over 8,000 historical buildings, stabilized and/or rehabilitated 150 historical buildings consisting mainly of private houses and public spaces; enrolled over 1500 young workers (including 10% females, representing 6,500 household members) over 20,000 working days in urban rehabilitation works; engaged over 500 youth in cash-based cultural programming and services; and disbursed small grants to 8 cultural CSOs to boost income-generation in the creative sector. Communication and awareness-raising materials fostering the ownership amongst local communities reached 5.5 million people, and resulted in 84 media features.

In this context, the proposed Consultation event will inform project’s stakeholders, partners and relevant stakeholders about concrete progress made, pending challenges, adjust work streams building on resources, knowledge and tools available. It will valorize the achievements of the Project so far and identify opportunities of additional synergies.
