1. BACKGROUND

UNESCO in partnership with ICOM presents a capacity-development workshop for European Union (EU) Member States’ museums and cultural heritage professionals on the fight against illicit trafficking of cultural property. The workshop is part of the ongoing EU-UNESCO project “Inter-regional and crosscutting action aiming to strengthen the fight against illicit trafficking of cultural property”, which aims to reduce the illicit trafficking of cultural property in the European Union and neighbouring countries by reinforcing the skills of key professionals and stimulating new synergies between source, transit and destination countries.

Every day, somewhere in the world, a cultural object is looted, stolen from a museum, illegally excavated, or smuggled across a border. European Union Member States are at the same time countries of source and transit, as well as among the key destination countries for cultural objects trafficked from areas all over the globe. Next to the evolving body of national legislations, EU-wide directives and regulations have been put in place to govern the movement of cultural goods, and many Member States have established specialized enforcement authorities to investigate and counter illicit trade.

Cooperation is key to addressing the scourge of illicitly trafficked cultural property, and museums and cultural heritage professionals have an important role to play, along with law enforcement agencies, customs services, and other stakeholders.

2. OBJECTIVES

This UNESCO-ICOM workshop intends to foster the network of museums and cultural heritage experts, raise awareness and fight against the illicit trade of cultural property across the European Union and beyond. This workshop will feature good practice examples in collection management, due diligence, and cooperation among institutions to identify areas for joint action.

As part of the EU-UNESCO joint initiative, this workshop shall strengthen expertise, dialogue, and linkages of museums and cultural heritage professionals as stakeholders in the fight against the illicit trafficking of cultural property.
