Encourage more countries to adopt access to information laws

The adoption of freedom information and access to information laws is a global trend. During the last decade more than 100 countries have legal frameworks in place today.