Revamping the Website of the African Network of Scientific and Technological Institutions

The African Network of Scientific and Technological Institutions (ANSTI) is a regional non-governmental organization (NGO) which was established in January 1980 by UNESCO with funding from United Nations Development Programme (UNDP) and the German Government.

The mission of ANSTI is to facilitate the active collaboration among African Scientific Institutions for the purpose of training and research in science, engineering and technology. The ultimate goal of ANSTI is to strengthen the regions capacity for training and research and for establishing services for intensive and purposeful utilization of Science, Engineering and Technology for development.

ANSTI’s website (http://www.ansti.org) has been the face of the Network for the last 15 years, and due to advances in technology, it has become imperative that the website is improved. The Network is therefore seeking the services of a reputable Information and Technology firm with experiences in website design, hosting and maintenance to revamp the ANSTI website.

Assignment

The service provider shall be expected to:

- improve the user interface of the website,
- offer hosting assistance and perform maintenance roles.
- collaborate with the ANSTI secretariat at the UNESCO Office in Nairobi to develop relevant contents and perform other functions necessary for the regular functioning of the website.
